THIRD GRADE NEWS: Mrs. Yoon and Ms. Leon

As the signs of spring are blooming everywhere, so are the wonderful works of our third-graders in the classroom. First, we congratulate them on their enchanting performance at the successful spring concert. Also, they have completed their very first NJSLA (New Jersey Student Learning Assessment). We are proud of the hard-work, focus, and the resilience they have displayed during this time. Let us not forget to thank our parents for their extra support and cooperation by ensuring our students' full night rest and providing a healthy breakfast every day. Our students got to fully enjoy their post NJSLA celebration afterwards. In ELA, our students have been studying the new genre: poetry. They have been reading various types of poems such as acrostic poems, haikus, cinquains, couplets, choral poems, and more. Inspired, they have been composing their own. We sure have talented poet laureates in the making. In math, our students are nearly done learning the concepts and skills in the third-grade curriculum. For the next few weeks, we will be conducting cumulative reviews, so they can be best prepared for fourth grade. Our students love no one more than their mothers, especially during this time of the year! They worked hard on their Mother's Day project. We wish all the moms, grandmothers, and aunts a wonderful and memorable Mother's Day!

FOURTH GRADE NEWS: Ms. Mastellone

Fourth graders worked really hard during the past two weeks. They focused and successfully completed the math and language arts NJSLA testing. I am very proud of all of them. As the end of the year is sneaking up on us, we are digging into our last math and science topics. The next several chapters in math will focus on geometry. Students will be identifying, drawing, and labeling lines, angles, and polygons. They are all excited to learn how to correctly use protractors. In science, the children will discover and experiment with forces, which is how all matter interacts, including electricity and magnetism.
